Fleeting Presence

In the crowded street,
on the commuter train,
I saw His Presence there.

In the news flash,
in the bleak rain,
I saw Him one again.

In the car crash,
with the homeless,
was God, who shares our pain.

At my wits' end,
in the rush hour,
was God, who keeps me sane.

Unexpected, uninvited,
long ignored and long rejected,
He will come again.

Blessings to you today in Christ,
